INTRODUCING THE RESTYLED 2014 CHEVROLET CAMARO

The 2014 Camaro represents the most significant design changes since the introduction of the fifth-generation Camaro as a concept car in 2006. The goal was to update both the aesthetics and performance of Camaro for 2014. Taking what the team learned through racing and high-performance models like Camaro ZL1 allowed them to improve aerodynamic performance without sacrificing the attention-grabbing design that stole so many hearts in 2010. A lower, wider and more contemporary Camaro will hit the city streets later this Summer.

The updated front fascia features a narrower upper opening and wider lower opening that enhance aerodynamic performance. Aerodynamic lift is further decreased by a functional hood vent on the Camaro SS, which diverts some of the airflow entering the engine bay up over the vehicle.

The rear features a taller rear diffuser and new, narrower LED taillamps. The streamlined lamps provide Camaro with a signature like the "Halo Ring" headlamps.

Interior updates are highlighted by the available RECARO® Performance Sport Seats on SS and ZL1 Coupe. On 2LT, 2SS and ZL1 models, drivers will enjoy an updated color Driver Information Center and Head-Up Display. For more information on the 2014 Camaro, go to chevrolet.com.

THE ALL-NEW 2014 CAMARO Z28

The mission of the all-new Camaro Z28 is to return the legendary name to its racing roots and serve as a testament to the expertise of Chevrolet performance.

The team was given one objective: Make the fastest, track-capable Camaro they could and make it street legal at the same time.

The build sheet is the envy of any racer: lightweight, high-revving hand-assembled LS7 engine, carbon ceramic brakes, integrated coolers for track use, true aerodynamic downforce and significant reduction in curb weight. Like the original, the 2014 Camaro Z28 is not offered with an automatic transmission, but instead will feature a TREMEC TR6060 6-speed manual transmission with close-ratio gearing optimized for the LS7.
